The Wyoming Innovations in Learning 2017 conference is opening a call for proposals. This is a unique opportunity for educators to explore teaching and learning practices that can apply to classrooms and distance learning environments from kindergarten through higher education.

The Innovations planning committee is requesting presentation proposals that promote innovative practices across the K-20 spectrum. The conference tracks include open education resources, innovations in teaching, digital learning, student learning assessment, online and blended learning, educational technology tools, using a Learning Management System (LMS), and Future Ready Schools.

Session proposals will be accepted through August 15, 2017. To submit a proposal click here. The Wyoming Innovations in Learning Conference will be held November 2-3 in Laramie. For more information or to register click here.
